Irish Songs for Piccolo

thefingeringchart.com

Ten Irish tunes, easiest first, from The Rakes of Mallow to St. Patrick's Day. Most are written with the key signature of B♭ major for piccolo, the same concert key the rest of the band uses. The last page shows the fingering for every note used, D4 to D6.

How to read it: each box is one note, with the letter on top and its octave number beside it; Danny Boy and The Last Rose of Summer have the words underneath, and a dash means hold the word over another note. A gold bar under a box marks a long note (two beats or more). Each part of a tune is written once; in a dance tune, play each part twice. 1 The Rakes of Mallow

Tip: A polka is bouncy and quick, but learn it slowly. Several bars end with four fast notes; keep them even and land firmly on the beat after each group.

Music: traditional, printed in London as early as 1742.

B♭4 C5 B♭4 B♭4 C5 B♭4

Tip: The tune moves mostly by step, so the hard part is the rhythm: count the dotted notes carefully and keep the repeated notes at the start of each line light and even.

Music: traditional Irish air. The best-known words are by Dion Boucicault (1864).

3 The Last Rose of Summer

Tip: Play it slowly and smoothly, like singing. The third line climbs to the top of the tune; take a full breath before it and keep the air steady through the long notes.

Music: traditional Irish air. Words: Thomas Moore (1805), published together in 1813.

Music: traditional (the tune also known as Dives and Lazarus). Words: Cathal MacGarvey (1866–1927).

8	C5	E♭5	F5	G5	F5	E♭5	C5	C5	C5

Tip: It is in 6/8, so count two big beats in each bar. The first part is built on a short dotted figure (long, short, long); keep it crisp and march-like rather than lazy.

Music: traditional. A version was published in the Dublin Monthly Magazine in 1842.

Tip: The last line starts on the highest note of the song ("here in sunshine or in shadow"). Practice that line on its own, and keep the air flowing through the long notes so they don't fade.

Music: the Londonderry Air, first published in 1855. Words to Danny Boy: Frederic Weatherly (1910), set to this tune in 1913.

3	D5	G5	C5	F5	A4	G4	F4	G5
4	D5	G5	C5	F5	E5	F5	F5	F5	G5
5	A5	A5	G5	F5	G5	F5	G5	A5	C6	D6	C6	A5	G5	F5
6	G5	C6	A5	G5	F5	D5	C5	D5	C5

8	D6	C6	B♭5	A5	G5	F5	G5	F5	E5	F5	F5

Tip: Think of it as a slow waltz: one strong beat at the start of each bar. The long notes give you time to breathe; use them, and let the tune float rather than march.

Music: usually credited to Turlough O'Carolan (1670–1738), as his first composition.
